HONGKONG, NOVEMBER CTH, 1880.

'In yesterday's issue we published a short article from the Indian Daily News on the seat of Government in China, which contained some very sensible remarks upon the unsuitability, from its position, of Peking as the metropolis of the Chinese Empire. There can be no possible doubt in the minds of all outsiders that Peking as a capital is most unfavourably situated, both from a strategic | Ulcers and other sores are often found on the and from a political point of view. It is foot; frequently, too, a large piece of flesh close to the frontier on the far north; is, as our Calcutta contemporary points out, too near the coast to be able long to make a successful resistance to a well organised inrading expedition; and is too remote from the southern and western provinces for the Imperial authority to be effectively exercised and for about two years the foot aches continually, there. There is really no valid reason why the seat of Government should not be changed, and if the Chinese Government are wise they will seriously consider the propriety of transferring it to some more central position and one that is at the same time less open te attack from abroad. 'Peking' has ever since the year 1421, when Yuna Lo, the third Emperor of the Ming dynasty, removed his Court thither, been the permanent capital, and there is no doubt the Mongoland Tartar dynastics have always entertained a prejudice in its favour. The Manchu rulers have, it must be admitted, some little reason to prefer Peking to a city situated in the heart of the Peking to a city situated in the heart of the Dr. Tander's Fast.—(To the Editor of the Hewlett, gaves garden party at the Consular through the proposed American canal and that prospectusing, and prospectusing and prospectusion and pro sway. Peking, the Yangteze being navigable for the largest men-of-war up to it, and it could not be easily defended without a powerful fleet. The city of Wu-chang, which is much further inland, being over five hundred miles up the river, almost in the core of the Central Kingdom, would be a the site for the metropolis. It is, however, very unlikely that the Manchu Government will ever of their own accord migrate south. When the Allies attacked and took Peking in 1860 the Emperor and Court fled to Johol, in Manchuria, and it is evident that the country is still regarded by the Manchus as a place of retreat when danger monaces Peking. But in the case of Russia proving an avowed foe to China, matters would assume a different aspect, for Russian territory borders on Manchuria and the latter would be exposed to attack by the Czar's legions. Moreover, in the event of Russia ever taking possession of Corea-which country sho is known to set covetous eves upon-Peking would be practically under the Muscovite thumb. Recent events have, we believe, inspired at Peking a senso of insecurity which might eventually perhaps lead to its abandonment as the capital, should war he declared against China by the St. Petersburg injust or not weare unable to say. The following detailed description of the mode of compressing the feet of Chinese women, writ- leave. ten by Miss Sophia Norwood, of the American Baptist Mission at Swatow, appears in The Times of the 20th September :- "The binding of the feet is not began till the child has learnt to wall and do various things. The bandages are specially manufactured, and are about 2in, wide and two yards long for the first, five yards long for sub sequent years. The end of the strip is laid or the inside of the foot at the instep, then curried over the toes, under the foot and mund the heel the toos being thus drawn towards and over the sole, while a bulge is produced on the instep and s deep indentation in the sole. The indentation it is considered, should measure about an incl and a half from the part of the foot that rests on the ground up to the instep. Successive layers of bandages are used till the strip is all used, and the end is then sown tightly down The foot is so squeezed upward that, in walking only the ball of the great toe touches the ground Large quantities of powdered alum are used t prevent ulceration and lessen the offensive odour. After a month the foot is put in hot water to soak some time; then the handage is carefull unwound, much lead cuticle coming off with i slenghs off the sole, and one or two toes may even drop off, in which case the woman feels afterwards repaid by having smaller and more delirate feet. Each time the bandage is taken off the foot is kneeded, to make the joints mor flexible, and is then bound up again as quickly as possible with a fresh bandage, which is draw up more tightly. During the first year the pain a portion of it. is so intense that the sufferer can do nothing and is the seat of a pain which is like the pricking of sharp needles. With continued rigorous blading, the foot in two years becomes dead and the preceding use. coases to ache, and the whole leg, from the knee. downward, becomes shrunk so as to be little more than skin and hone. When once formed, the 'golden lily,' as the Chinese lady calls ber delicate little fact, can never recover its enginal shape.

TRAGEDY IN MAUAO.

The uneventfultenour of life in the neighbouring Colony of Macao has been disturbed by a tragedy which has come like a shock upon that quiet community, Major Beja, the Commundant of the European Battalion there, having fallen a rictim to a most determined attempt on his life y one of the soldiers of the Garrison. It appenra that the Commandant had occasion to ounish this man ashort time ago, and gave him fifteen days' imprisonment for "sleeping on duty." This sentence seems to have rankled in the man's breast, whether because he thought it day night, however, when on sentry duty at the gate of the old Castom House, he left, taking with the French pattern which have hitherto been him his musket scaled the wall of the officers' quarters, and made his way, to those of the Combers between twelve and one n'olook by hearing some one trying to force an entrance into his room. Rising from bished he took a revolver and opened them. This will enable a reduction to be made the door, demanding to know who was there. The latter replied with his revolver, but mixed his assailant, and on trying to fire a second time the weapon missed fire. By this time the assassin was ready and fired second time at the Commandant, indicting fatal wound. The unfortunate officer's wife, who had vainly endeavoured to stay the murderer's hand, was now threatened by the ruffian. who demanded all the money she had. She handed him ton dollars, and he left the place at full speed, The sentry saw him passing the Barracks, challenged him, and fired, but missed. The murderer having got clear of this danger, appears to have gone in search of the two Sergeants who had given evidence against him for neglect of duty, but, finding that he could not gain admission and that his pursuers were on his track, he abandoned his intention and fled into the city. He was, however, diligently sought for, and discovered asleep between two and three o'clock yesterday morning in a Chinese brothel. When arrested. he denied his guilt at first, but subsequently confersed that be originally intanded to kill Captain.

THE DARIEN CANAL.

Mr. Joseph Nimmo, jun., the Chief of the United States Bureau of Statistics, has made a report to the Secretary of the Treasury on the proposed American Inter-Oceanic Carel and its to commence operations or are making preparapossible offects on American commerce, and the following is a summery of his conclusions :-"I .- That the shipping which would annually South Indian; the Glearook, all fairly well adpass through the proposed American Inter-Oceanic Canal would amount to about 1,500 vessels, feeting their preliminary arrangements; others or 1,625,000 tons annually.

divorted to the transcontinental railway line. "7.—That there is now a large and growing commerce between the Pacific ports of the United States and interior points east of the Rocky Mountains. The proposed canal would not prosent any direct competition to this trade between interior points in the United States and ports on the Pacific ocast.

"8.—That the commerce between the Pacific ports of the United States and Europe would probably seek the passage through the proposed oanal in atoara vessels. "9. That the magnitude of the commerce the countries on the western coast of South Americal limited by that most marked orological feature of the continent, the Andean range, extending from the Isthmus of Panama to the Straits of Magellan, and also by conditions of climate and soil hereinbefore described. "10 and 11 .- That the shipment of guaro and nitrate of soda from the western coast of Peru and Bolivia, giving employment to about 810,000 tens of shipping annually, the part of the trade of Chili with the Atlantic ports of the United States and with Europa sid Cape Horn, giving employment to about 385,000 tons of shipping annually, would probably continue to pursue that "12 -That 28 per cent. of the ten imported into the United States during the year ended June 30th, 1879, was imported at Pacific ports and 72 per cent, at Atlantic ports of the United States, and that probably the entire tea supply of the Atlantic sea-board States will eventually be brought from the countries of its production to San Francisco, and thence overland by rail. "13.—That, on account of the nautical conditions involved in the passage through the proposed cenal, sailing vessels, engaged in trade be twoon the Atlantic sea-board of the United States and Australia and New Zealand will probably continue to pursue either the passage around Cape Horn or the passage around the Cape of Good Hope.

"In obtaining these facts he furnishes uteresting data. The commercial utility the canal with respect to the Atlantic and ports of the United States is practically limited to trade east of the 110th meridian of longitude cast of Greenwich. This is so, he thinks because the consideration of distance would pravent vessels between Africa; Asia. and Anstralia, and vessels between the Atlantic and Gulf ports of the United States and Europe Africa, and almost all of Asia, except China and Jopan, from passing wid the canal About 34 per cent of the shipping in the Chine and Japan trade with the Atlantic ports of the United States now seeks the Suez Canal route, or 11.796 miles. By the American canal from New York to Hongkong it would be 558 miles shorter, yet Mr. Nimmo does not believe that passage would be sought by the new route, unless it should be quite as favourable at Suez with respect to facilities for transit and coaling, which he doubts. as also whether the nautical conditions would be as favourable. The transportation of wheat be comes a very important item in this connexion. and two questions are suggested. First, whether sailing vessels with wheat would be likely to take that route; second, whother steam vessels would not supersede eailing vessels in the wheat trade. At a low toll Mr. Nimmo's information is that steamers might take that route, yet he has also assurances that California wheat being of a hard, dinty nature, it would not pay to take it through the canal at 31 a ton. The South Ame. rican trade has already been referred to. Comparing the commercial aspects of the Suez and American canals more closely, and recapitalating in partin order to show their relative importance. Mr. Nimmo points out procisely how for commoroial possibilities have been realized in practice. There might have passed through Suez in 1878 tonnage amounting to 6.313.742. 3,291,535 tons did pass through. On the basis of calculation there might pass through the American canal 2,933,386 tons, but it would more likely be 1.625.000. The cost of the Suez Caugh was $92,273,907. The receipts last year on 3.236.942 tons were 35.973.186, and the errenditures, including 5 per cent. interest upon the share capital as sinking fund, were $5,415,542. leaving a balance of $557,645. From this a cal-

BUSSIA AND MERV.

The Goles, received this morning, contains a ong article on the Merr question deprecating the silence of the Russian Government, and the impending occupation of the cases by General Skobeleff. "The preparations for the march of our troops from Bami to Gook Tope, where the Tokke best is gothered," it says, "constitute an extremely difficult daty. Two questions arise in connection with it: do we mean to occupy Geok Cope only, or do we mean to push further on to Mery, as asserted by the newspapers abroad? Regretably, notwithstanding that it is now the second year that the Russian troops are undertaking a distant expedition into the heart of the Akhol Tekke onsis, the final sim of the military operations remains a close official secret. Every one answers the question of Skobeleff's aim according to his fancy, and the English public, re lying upon the reports of the Russian Fress, as sums quite a hostile tone. To the question as to what Russia gains by such secreey it is difficult to give a satisfactory answer, nor is it possible to define the recompense she is to obtain for her large and costly outlay of roubles and blood. While admitting that Russia's efforts ought to be expended in developing her own resources, we caunot but recognise that necessity impels her to a pacification of the region lying within the triungle formed by Krasknovodsk, Tchikitliar, and Rami. To quell the stappe robbors once for all, it is absolutely indispossable to orush their gathered strength at Gook Teps. In a word, year ago by the Rocalei Invalide-to pacify the ranscaspion Steppes and protect the commercial highway running between Krasnovodsk and Khiva. HOIST WITH HIS OWN PETARD. During the maleficent existence of the lately diseatablished "Third Section" the Russian postmasters had a right of opening any letters which they regarded as suspicious, in order that they might be forwarded, if the suspicions proved to be well-grounded, to the Secret Chancery of the Third Section. The new monthly number of the St. Petersburg Russkaja Stardina ("Bussian Antiquity") relates as anecdote of the famous poet A. S. Puschkin, one of whose private letters to his wife was opened by the Moseow Postmaster Bulgakoff. The poet's wife was staying at the time in Messow, and Puschkin's letter to her contained some very uncomplimentary remarks upon the Czar Nicholas When Bulgakoff had read the poet's letter he despatched it straightway to Count Benkendorf. the chief of the Third Section. This official handed the letter to his secretary, Miller, for further official handling. Miller happened to be a passionate admirer of the poet's works, and he hurried off with the letter, in great alarm, to M D. Delard, a friend of his own and of Puschkin. When Delaru had read the letter, be folded it up, and quietly thrust it into his pocket. telling Miller that he could not nosibly return it since it contained words which might bring their friend the great post to capital punishment. Ho advised Miller to tell his chief that Puschkin's letter bad unhappily got smourst a number of papers which were to be burned, and had perished amongst them. Miller consented to resort to this untruth in order to save the post and Miller took the letter to Puschkin himself A few days later the grateful poet went to his friend and showed him the copy of a second letter which he had sent to his wife. In it he warned her to be careful, since everything she wrote to him would be read by "that rascal Bulgakoff, who would probably send ber latter to the secret Bulgakoff's not very reputable manuer of life. "Now we shall see," said Puschkin, "whether Bulgakoli will send this letter to the secret police!" Balgakoff opmed Puschking letter, as was afterwards discovered, but when he had read ita contents he sealed it up again, taking good care that its revelations concerning himself should not get into the hands of the Third Sec
